After many months of searching, The Quest for "it" has found not only its current Feature Story subject, but also its first cover girl in Esther Nash. New York based Designer and Socialite Esther Nash is the epitome of a chick on the quest. The fashion world's former child prodigy is all grown up, and is currently shooting segments in a new design competition show for MTV this very month. At the age of 18 Esther owned her first retail store, by age 19 a second, and by age 21 was regularly having her own runway shows, thereby reaching the rank of a young professional designer. Ms. Nash's fashions have been featured on the long running hit HBO series Sex in the City, and her last runway show (she has had over a dozen) was notably attended by Vogue Editor in Chief, Anna Wintour.
